Ferd Ward Sent up for Ten Years.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Ferdinand Ward, smiling and perfectly self-possessed, came into the crowded court room this morning to receive his sentence. Throwing off his overcoat with an easy air, he bowed to and shook hands with his counsel. The court clerk was promptly on hand with his assistant. The judge, however, was late and did not arrive until twenty minutes after the appointed hour. General Tracy, of the Ward counsel moved that judgment be arrested on the ground that the facts stated in the second count of the indictment do not constitute a crime, the court has not jurisdiction on the subject of the indictment and Ferdinand Ward was sentenced by Judge Barrett to the state's prison for ten years.

Ward was taken from the court room to the sheriff's office, and it was decided he should be taken to Sing Sing by the first train, at 2:30.

From the moment of his incarceration until the last words that dropped from Judge Phillips, which sealed his doom, the miserable man had not spoken a word or made an audible noise with his tongue. The last words of the ninety-nine-year sentence had hardly reached through the court room, however, when the mysterious criminal, who had so long remained apparently dumb, yelled out an avalanche of oaths at the court.

A QUESTION ABOUT

Brown's Iron Bitters

ANSWERED.

The question has probably been asked thousands of times, "How can Brown's Iron Bitters cure everything?" Well, it doesn't. But it does cure any disease for which a reputable physician would prescribe IRON. Physicians recognize iron as the best restorative agent known to the profession, and inquiry of any leading chemical firm will substantiate the assertion that there are more preparations of iron than of any other substance used in medicine. This shows conclusively that iron is acknowledged to be the most important factor in successful medical practice. It is, however, a remarkable fact, that prior to the discovery of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS no perfectly satisfactory iron combination had ever been found. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS does not injure the teeth, cause headache, or produce constipation—all other iron medicines do. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS cures Indigestion, Biliousness, Weakness, Dyspepsia, Malaria, Chills and Fevers, Tired Feeling, General Debility, Pain in the Side, Back or Limbs, Headache and Neuralgia—for all these ailments Iron is prescribed daily. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, however, does not cure in a minute. Like all other thorough medicines, it acts slowly. When taken by men the first symptom of benefit is renewed energy. The muscles then become firmer, the digestion improves, the bowels are active. In women the effect is usually more rapid and marked. The eyes begin at once to brighten; the skin clears up; healthy color comes to the cheeks; nervousness disappears; functional derangements become regular, and if a nursing mother, abundant sustenance is supplied for the child. Remember Brown's Iron Bitters is the ONLY iron medicine that is not injurious. Physicians and Druggists recommend it.

The Genuine has Trade Mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. TAKE NO OTHER.

GRANDMOTHER

Used herbs in doctoring the family, and her simple remedies DID CURE in most cases. Without the use of herbs, medical science would be powerless; and yet the tendency of the times is to neglect the best of all remedies for those powerful medicines that seriously injure the system.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS.

is a combination of valuable herbs, carefully compounded from the formula of a regular Physician, who used this prescription largely in his private practice with great success. It is not a drink, but a medicine used by many physicians. ☞ It is invaluable for DYSPEPSIA, KIDNEY and LIVER COMPLAINTS, NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, WEAKNESS, INDIGESTION, &c.; and while curing will not hurt the system.

Mr. C. J. Rhodes, a well-known iron man of Safe Harbor, Pa., writes:

"My son was completely prostrated by fever and ague. Quinine and barks did him no good. I then sent for Mishler's Herb Bitters and in a short time the boy was quite well."

"E. A. Schellentrager, Druggist, 717 St. Clair Street, Cleveland, O., writes:

"Your Bitters, I can say, and do say, are prescribed by some of the oldest and most prominent physicians in our city."

"BLOOD."

From the Text, "Without Shedding of Blood is No Remission."

The Principal of Self-Sacrifice Found Running Through Human Nature

Blood for Blood and Life for Life Freely Given in all Walks of the World.

Prof. Henry Eyre Brown opened the services in the Brooklyn Tabernacle last Sunday with the organ solo, "First Sonate in D minor, by Ritter. Dr. Talmage expounded the chapter in Leviticus about ancient sacrifices. The hymn sung was:

Salvation, O the joyful sound!
'Tis pleasure to our ears;
A sovereign balm for every wound,
A cordial for our fears.

The subject of the sermon was "Blood," and the text was from Hebrew ix., 22: "Without shedding of blood is no remission." The preacher said:

THE SERMON.

John G. Whittier, the last of the great school of American poets that made the last quarter of a century so brilliant, asked me, in the White mountains one morning after prayer, in which I had given out Cowper's famous hymn about "the fountain filled with blood." "Do you really believe there is a literal application of the blood of Christ to the soul? My negative reply then is my negative reply now. The Bible statement agrees with all physicians and all physiologists and all scientists in saying that the blood is the life, and in the christian religion it means simply that Christ's life was given for our life. Hence, all this talk of men who say the Bible story of blood is disgusting, and that they don't want what they call a "slaughter house religion," only shows their incapacity or unwillingness to look through the figure of speech toward the thing signified. The blood that on the darkest Friday the world ever saw oozed or trickled or poured from the brow and the side and the hands and the feet of the illustrious sufferer, back of Jerusalem, in a few hours coagulated and dried up and forever disappeared; and if man had depended upon the application of the literal blood of Christ, there would not have been a soul saved for the last eighteen centuries.

In order to understand this red word of my text, we only have to exercise as much common sense in religion as we do in everything else. Pang for pang, hunger for hunger, fatigue for fatigue, tear for tear, blood for blood, life for life, we see every day illustrated. The act of substitution is no novelty, although I hear men talk as though the idea of Christ's suffering substituted for our suffering was something abnormal, something distressingly odd, something wildly eccentric, a solitary episode in the world's history; when I could take you out into this city, and before sundown point you to five hundred cases of substitution and voluntary suffering of one in behalf of another.

CHAMPION OF A HOMESTEAD.

At 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon go among the places of business or toil. It will be no difficult thing for you to find men who by their looks show you that they are overworked. They are prematurely old. They are hastening rapidly toward their decease. They have gone through crises in business that shattered their nervous system and pulled on the brain. They have a shortness of breath and a pain in the back of the head, and at night an insomnia that alarms them. Why are they drudging at business early and late? For fun? No; it would be difficult to extract any amusement out of that exhaustion. Because they are avaricious? In many cases no. Because their own personal expenses are lavish? No; a few hundred dollars would meet all their wants. The simple fact is the man is enduring all that fatigue and exasperation, and wear and tear, to keep his home prosperous. There is an invisible line reaching from that bank, from that shop, from that scaffolding, to a quiet scene a few blocks, a few miles away, and there is the secret of that business endurance. He is simply the champion of a homestead for which he wins bread and wardrobe and education and prosperity, and in such battle ten thousand men fall. Of ten business men whom I bury, nine die of overwork for others. Some sudden disease finds them with no power of resistance, and they are gone. Life for life; blood for blood. Substitution.

ANGEL OF THE HOMESTEAD.

At 1 o'clock to-morrow morning, the hour when slumber is most uninterrupted and most profound, walk amid dwelling houses of the city. Here and there you will find a dim light, because it is the household custom to keep a subdued light burning, but most of the houses from base to top are as dark as though uninhabited. A merciful God has sent forth the archangel of sleep, and he put his wings over the city. But yonder is a clear light burning, and outside on the window casement a glass or pitcher containing food for a sick child, the food set in the fresh air. This is the ninth night that mother has set up with that sufferer. She has to the last point obeyed the physician's prescription, not giving a drop too much or too little, or a moment too soon or too late. She is very anxious, for she has buried three children with the same disease, and she prays and weeps, each prayer and sob ending with a kiss of the pale cheek. By dint of kindness she gets the little one through the ordeal. After it is all over the mother is taken down. Brain or nervous fever sets in, and one day she leaves the convalescent child with a mother's blessings and goes up to join the three in the kingdom of heaven. Life for life. Substitution. The fact is that there are an uncounted number of mothers who, after they have navigated a large family of children through all the diseases of infancy and got them fairly started up the flowing slope of boyhood and girlhood, have only strength enough left to die. They fade away. Some call it consumption; some call it nervous prostration; some call it intermittent or malarial disposition; but I call it martyrdom of the domestic circle. Life for life. Blood for blood. Substitution.

Or perhaps she lingers long enough to see a son get on the wrong road, and his former kindness becomes rough reply when she expresses anxiety about him. But she goes right on, looking carefully after his apparel, remembering his every birthday with some memento, and when he is brought home worn out with dissipation nurses him till he gets well and starts him again, and hopes and expects and prays and counsels and suffers, until her strength gives out and she fails. She is going, and attendants bending over her pillow ask her if she has any message to leave, and she makes great effort to say something, but out of three or four minutes of indistinct utterance they can catch but three words, "My poor boy!" The simple fact is she died for him. Life for life. Substitution.

BLOOD SPILLED IN BATTLE.

About twenty-four years ago there went forth from our homes hundreds of thousands of men to do battle for their country. All the poetry of war soon vanished and left them nothing but the terrible prose. They waded knee deep in mud. They slept in snow-banks. They marched till their cut feet marked the earth. They were swindled out of their honest rations, and lived on meat not fit for a dog. They had jaws fractured and eyes extinguished and limbs shot away. Thousands of them cried for water as they lay dying on the field the night after the battle and they got it not. They were homesick and received no message from their loved ones. They died in barns, in bushes, in ditches, the buzzards of the summor heat the only attendants on their obsequies. No one but the infinite God, who knows everything, knows the ten-thousandth part of the length and breath and height of anguish of northern and southern battlefields. Why did these fathers leave their children and go to the front, and why did these young men, postponing the marriage day, start out into probabilities of never coming back? For the country they died. Life for life. Blood for blood. Substitution.

SELF-SACRIFICE.

But we need not go so far. What is that monument in Greenwood? It is to the doctors who fell in the southern epidemics. Why go? Were there not enough sick to be attended in these northern lattitudes? Oh, yes, but the doctor puts a few medical books in his valise, and some vials of medicine, and leaves his patients here in the hands of other physicians, and takes the rail train. Before he gets to the infected regions he passes crowded rail trains, regular and extra, taking the flying and affrighted populations. He arrives in a city over which a great horror is brooding. He goes from couch to couch, feeling of pulse and studying symptoms and prescribing, day after day, night after night, until a fellow physician says: "Doctor, you had better go home and rest; you look miserable." But he can not rest while so many are suffering. On and on until some morning finds him in a delirium, in which he talks of home, and then rises and says he must go and look after those patients. He is told to lie down, but he fights his attendants until he falls back, and is weaker and weaker, and dies for people with whom he had no kinship and far away from his family, and is hastily put away in a stranger's tomb, and only the fifth part of a newspaper line tells us of his sacrifice, his name just mentioned among five. Yet he has touched the farthest height of sublimity in that three weeks of humanitarian service. He goes straight as an arrow to the bosom of Him who said: "I was sick and ye visited me." Life for life. Blood for blood. Substitution.

THE PRINCIPLE EXTENDED.

In the legal profession I see the same principle of self-sacrifice. In 1846, William Freeman, a pauperized and idiotic negro, was at Auburn, New York, on trial for murder. He had slain the the entire Van Nest family. The foaming wrath of the community could be kept off him only by armed constables. Who would volunteer to be his counsel? No attorney wanted to sacrifice his popularity by such an ungrateful task. All were silent save one, a young lawyer with a feeble voice that could hardly be heard outside the bar, pale and thin and awkward. It was William H. Seward who saw that the prisoner was idiotic and irresponsible and ought to be put in an asylum rather than put to death, the heroic counsel uttering these beautiful words: "I speak now in the hearing of a people who have prejudged the prisoner and condemned me for pleading in his behalf. He is a convict, a pauper, a negro, without intellect, sense or emotion. My child with an affectionate smile disarms my careworn face of its frown whenever I cross my threshold. The beggar in the street obliges me to give, because he says, "God bless you!" as I pass. My dog caresses me with fondness if I but smile on him. My horse recognizes me when I fill his manger. What reward, what gratitude, what sympathy and affection can I expect here? There the prisoner sits. Look at him. Look at the assemblage around you. Listen to their ill-suppressed censures and their excited fears and tell me where among my neighbors or my fellow men, where, even in his heart, I can expect to find a sentiment, a thought, not to say of reward or of acknowledgement or even of recognition. * * * Gentlemen, you may think of this evidence what you please, bring in what verdict you can, but I asseverate before heaven and you that, to the best of my knowledge and belief, the prisoner at the bar does not at this moment know why it is that my shadow falls on you instead of his own." The gallows got its victim, but the post-mortem examination of the poor creature showed to all the surgeons and to all the world that the public were wrong, and Wm. H. Seward was right; and that hard, stony step of obloquy in the Auburn court room was the first step of the stairs of fame up which he went to the top, or to within one step of the top, that last denied him through the treachery of American politics. Nothing sublimer was ever seen in an American court room than Wm. H. Seward, without reward, standing between the fury of the populace and the loathsome imbecile. Substitution.

EXAMPLES IN ART.

In the realms of the fine arts there was as remarkable an instance. A brilliant but hypercriticised painter, Joseph William Turner, was met by a volley of abuse from all the art galleries of Europe. His paintings which have since won the applause of all civilized nations, "The Fifth Plague of Egypt," "Fishermen on a Lee Shore in Squally Weather," "Calais Pier," "The Sun Rising Through Mist," and "Dido Building, Carthage," were then targets for critics to shoot at. In defense of this outrageously abused man, a young author of twenty-four years, just one year out of college, came forth with his pen and wrote the ablest and most famous essay on art that the world ever saw or ever will see—John Ruskin's Modern Painters. For seventeen years this author fought the battles of the maltreated artist, and after in poverty and brokenheartedness the painter had died, and the public tried to undo their cruelties towards him by giving him a big funeral and burial at St. Paul's cathedral. His old-time friend took out of a tin box nineteen thousand pieces of paper containing drawings by the old painter, and through many weary and uncompensated months assorted and arranged them for public observation. People say John Ruskin in his old days is cross, misanthropic and morbid. Whatever he may do that he ought not to do, and whatever he may say that he ought not to say between now and his death, he will leave this world insolvent as far as it has any capacity to pay this author's pen for its chivalric and Christian defense of a poor painter's pencil. John Ruskin for William Turner. Blood for blood. Substitution.

AN EXALTING PRINCIPLE.

What an exalting principle this which leads one to suffer for another! Nothing so kindles enthusiasm or awakens eloquence, or chimes poetic cantos, or moves nations. That principle is the dominant one in our religion—Christ the martyr, Christ the celestial hero, Christ the defender, Christ the substitute. No new principle, for it was as old as human nature; but on a grander, wider, higher, deeper and more world-resounding scale. The shepherd boy, as champion for Israel, with a sling toppled the giant Philistine braggadocio in the dust, but here is another David, who, for all the armies of churches militant and triumphant, hurls the Goliath of hell into defeat, the crash of his brazen arm or like an explosion at Hell Gate. Abraham had, at God's command, agreed to sacrifice his son Isaac, and the same God, just in time, had provided a ram of the thicket as a substitute; but here is another Isaac bound to the altar, and no hand arrests the sharp edges of laceration and death, and the universe shivers, and quakes, and recoils, and groans at the horror. All good men have for centuries been trying to tell who this substitute was like, and every comparison inspired and unspired, evangelistic, prophetic, apostolic and human, falls short, for Christ was the great unlike. Adam a type of Christ, because he came directly from God Noah a type of Christ, because he delivered his own family from deluge; Melchisedeck a type of Christ, because he had no predecessor or successor; Joseph a type of Christ, he was put to death by his brother; Moses, a type of Christ, because he was a deliverer from bondage; Joshua, a type of Christ, because he was a conqueror; Samson a type of Christ, because of his strength to slay the lions and carry off the iron gate of impossibility; Solomon a type of Christ, in the fullness of his dominion: Jonah a type of Christ, because of the stormy sea in which he threw himself for the rescue of others; but put together Adam and Noah and Melchisedeck and Joseph and Moses and Joshua and Samson and Solomon and Jonah and they would not make a fragment of a Christ, a quarter of a Christ, the half of a Christ, the millionth part of a Christ. He forsook a throne and sat down on his own footstool. He came from the top of glory to the bottom of humiliation, and changed a circumference seraphic to a circumference diabolic. Once waited on by angels now hissed at by brigands. From afar and high up, he came down; a past meteors, swifter than they; by starry thrones, himself more lustrous; past larger worlds and smaller worlds, down stairs of firmaments and from cloud to cloud and through the tree tops and into the camel's stall. To thrust his shoulder under our burdens and take the lance of pain through his vitals, he wrapped himself in all the agonies which we deserve for our misdoings, and stood on the spilling decks of a wrecking ship amid the drenching surf of the sea and passed midnights on the mountains amid wild beasts of prey and stood at the point where all earthly and infernal hostilities charged on him at once, with their keen sabers, our substitute.

CHRIST'S SACRIFICE IN COMPARISON.

When did attorney ever endure so much for a pauper client, or physician for the patient in the lazeretto, or mother for the child in membranous croup, as Christ for us, and Christ for you, and Christ for me? Shall any man or woman or child in this audience who has ever suffered for another, find it hard to understand this Christly suffering for us? Shall those whose sympathies have been wrung in behalf of the unfortunate have no appreciation of that one of eternity as most conspicuous, when Christ gathered up all the sins of those to be redeemed under his one arm and all their sorrows under the other arm, and said: "I will atone for these under my right arm and will heal all those under my left arm. Strike me with thy glittering shafts. O, eternal justice. Roll over me with all thy surges, ye oceans of sorrow!" And the thunderbolts struck him from above, and the seas of trouble rolled up from beneath, hurricane after hurricane and cyclone after cyclone, and then and there, in presence of heaven and earth and hell, yea, all worlds witnessing, the price, the bitter price, the transcendent price, the awful price, the glorious price, the infinite price, the eternal price, was paid that sets us free. That is what Paul means, that is what I mean, that is what all those who have ever had their heart changed mean by "blood." I glory in this religion of blood. I am thrilled as I see the suggestive color in sacramental cup, whether it be of burnished silver set on cloth immaculately white, or rough-hewn from wood set on table in log-hut meeting-house of the wilderness. Now I am thrilled as I see the altars of ancient sacrifice crimson with the blood of the slain lamb, Levitious is to me not so much the Old Testament as the New. Now I see why the destroying angel passing over Egypt in the night spared all those houses that had blood sprinkled on their door posts. Now I know what Isaiah means when he speaks of "one in red apparel coming with dyed garments from Bozrah;" and whom John means when he describes a heavenly chieftain whose "vesture was dipped in blood," and what Peter, the Apostle, means when he speaks of the "precious blood," and what John means when he refers to the blood that cleanseth from all sin, and what the old worn out, decrepit missionary, Paul, means when, in my text, he cries, "Without shedding of blood there is no remission." By that blood you and I will be saved, or never saved at all. In all the ages of the world God has not once pardoned a single sin except through the Saviour's expiation, and He never will. Glory be to God that the hill back of Jerusalem was the battlefield on which Christ achieved our liberty!

A DAY ON A BATTLEFIELD.

The most exciting and overpowering day of last summer was the day I spent on the battle-field of Waterloo. Starting out with the morning train from Brussels, Belgium, we arrived in about an hour on that famous spot, A son of one who was in the battle, and who had heard from his father a thousand times the whole scene recited, accompanied us over the field. There stood the old Hougomont Chateau, the walls dented and scratched and broken and shattered of grape-shot and cannon-ball. There is the well in which three hundred dead and dying were pitched. There is the chapel with the head of the infant Christ shot off. There are gates at which for many hours the English and French armies wrestled. Yonder were the 160 guns of the English and the 250 guns of the French. Yonder the Hanoverian Hussars fled for the woods. Yonder was the ravine of Ohaine, where the French cavalry, not knowing there was a hollow in the ground, rolled over and down, troop after troop two thousand horses and fifteen hundred men tumbling into one awful mass of suffering, hoof of kicking horses against brow and breast of captains and colonels and private soldiers, the human and the beastly groan kept up until, the day after, all was shoveled under, because of the malodor arising in that hot month of June. "There," said our guide, "the highland regiments lay down on their faces waiting for the moment to spring upon the foe. In that orchard 2,500 men were cut to pieces. Here stood Wellington with white lips, and by that knoll rode Marshal Nay on his sixth horse, five having been shot under him. Here the ranks of the French broke and Marshal Ney with his body slashed of a sword and his hat off and his face covered with powder and blood, tried to rally his trops as he cried; "Come and see how a marshal of France dies on the battlefield." From yonder direction Grouchey was expected for the French reinforcement, but he came not. Around those woods Blucher was looked for to reinforce the English, and just in time he came up. Yonder is the field where Napoleon stood, his arm through the reins of the horses bridle, dazed and unstrung, trying to go back. Scene of a battlefield that went on from twenty-five minutes to 12 o'clock, on the 18th day of June, until 4 o'clock, when the English seemed defeated, and their commander cried out: "Boys, can you think of giving way? Remember old England!" and the tides turned, and at 8 o'clock in the evening the man of destiny, who was called by his troops Old Two Hundred Thousand, turned away with broken heart, and the fate of centuries decided. No wonder a great mound has been reared there hundreds of feet high, a mound at the expense of millions of dollars and many years in rising, and on the top is the great Belgian lion of bronze, and a grand old lion it is.

But our great Waterloo was in Palestine. There came a day when all hell came up, led by Apollyon, and the captain of our salvation confronted them alone, the rider on the white horse of the Apocalypse going out against the black horse cavalry of death. From 12 o'clock at noon to 3 o'clock in the afternoon the greatest battle of the universe went on. Eternal destinies were being decided. All the arrows of hell pierced our Chieftain, and the battle axes struck him until brow and cheek and shoulder and hand and foot were incarnadined with oozing life, but he fought on until he gave a final stroke with sword from Jehovah's buckler, and the commander-in-chief of hell and all his forces fell back in everlasting ruin, and the victory is ours, and on the mound that celebrates the triumph, we plant this day two figures, not in bronze or iron of sculptured marble, but two figures of living light, the lion of Judah's tribe and the lamb that was slain.

"100 doses one dollar" is true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy.

SATURDAY, OCT. 31, 1885.

"LITTLE MACK."

His Fort Wayne Comrades Do Him Honor.

In response to the call for a meeting of old veterans who had served in the army of the Potomac under the late General George McClellan, about twenty gentlemen assembled in Colonel Robertson's law office last evening. Colonel Robertson was unanimously chosen chairman and Mr. George D. Adams elected secretary. On motion the chair appointed comrades A. P. Buchman, Allan H. Dougall, F. F. Boltz, J. W. Young, as a committee, which acting with himself, was empowered to draft a series of resolutions expressing the grief of all present at the death of the gallant "Little Mac."

Colonel Robertson, then, at the request of the meeting pronounced a brief eulogy on the life and public services of General McClellan. This address although entirely impromptu was a grand effort and was listened to with marked attention. Colonel Young followed in a brief outline of General McClellan's brilliant career previous to his taking command of all the armies and the army of the Potomac in particular. The speaker paid a high tribute to the deceased general's great patriotism and intense devotion to duty.

Messrs. A. P. Buchman and F. F. Boltz also made short addresses. They referred mainly to the manly qualities of McClellan and his acknowledge ability as a tactician and a military engineer.

Among those present were the following gentlemen, their regiments and companies are given where known: Samuel M. Hench, company F., 126th Pennsylvania; R. S. Robertson, 93rd New York; George Humphrey, 12th Indiana; F. F. Boltz, company G, 12th Indiana; Scott Swann, company F, 12th Indiana; J. Willis Clark. 59th New York; J. W. Young, 76th New York; George D. Adams, 74th New York; H. O. Crosby, company A, 5th United States cavalry; J. H. Sloan, company I. 11th Pennsylvania reserves; A. P. Buchman, 107th Ohio; Frank Gibson, 69th Pennsylvania; Allen Dougall, army of Georgia; C B. Oakley, army of the Cumberland; John Seaton, army of Ohio; F. W. Keil, army of Ohio.

The committee on resolutions submitted the following preamble and resolutions which were unanimously adopted.

Whereas, with the death of Major General George B. McClellan, the last surviving, but first of the great commanders of, and the one who organized the grand army of the Potomac has passed away. The one who could best tell us the story of its formation, its progress, its rigid adherence to duty and its steady onward march to the culumination of a mighty army, perfect in all its parts. Therefore be it,

Resolved, that as soldiers, while we submit to the afflictive visitation of the Wise Dispenser of all events, we regard the death of General McClellan as a public calamity.

Resolved, That in his conspicuous qualities as a soldier, so greatly displayed on many historic fields, and his gentlemanly and chivalric bearing, connected as they were with true patriotism, we have an eminent example of those virtues and graces of mind which together form the crowning glory of human life.

Resolved, That to his stricken family we offer our sincere condolence in their great bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family and published by the press of this city.

The appointment of Judge Long gives universal satisfaction, says Jap Turpin in the Indianapolis Sentinel. The habits and tastes of a student have blessed him with far more than what might be termed a "liberal education." He is remarkably apt and successful in his profession of jurisprudence and one of the most agreeable persons in the world. Judge Ward, of the Lafayette district and Judge Long

Knowing nothing of the flight of time,
Fearing naught but work and rainy weather.

As chums they dived into sciences; having scaled Parnacus, having previously shared together mumps, measles and whooping cough and long years have not in the least abated their friendship. In addition to this, Judge Lowry of the Fort Wayne district, and Judge Long were once, though living in separate towns, law partners and have always been devoted friends. It was Judge Lowry who wrote for Judge Long to come to Washington and felt sure that President Cleveland would approve his application for the place made vacant by the suspension of Judge Long.

There Shall be no Alps.

When Napoleon talked of invading Italy one of his officers said: "But, sire, remember the Alps." To an ordinary man these would seemed simply insurmountable, but Napoleon responded eagerly: "There shall be no Alps." So the famous Simplon was passed. Disease, like a mountain, stands in the way of fame, fortune and honor to many who by Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" might be healed and so the mountain would disappear. It is specific for all blood, chronic lung and liver diseases, such as consumption (which is scrofula of the lungs), pimples, blotches, eruptions, tumors, swellings, fever-sores and kindred complaints.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

NISSA, October, 30.—It is officially announced to-day that the Bulgarian forces have blockaded the frontier and that the officers have issued orders to the men, to shoot any man they find crossing from Servia into Bulgaria. The Servian troops have been ordered to reply in force, in such an event, without awaiting special orders from the commanding general, or in other words they have received carte blanche in the premises. It is stated that bands of Bulgarians have commenced harrassing the Servian frontier towns.

PARIS, October 30.—The man who tried to assassinate M. De Freycinet, whose name is Mattie, is now supposed to be a lunatic.

SKIN, SCALP, BLOOD

Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by the Cuticura Remedies.

Hundreds of letters in our possession, copies of which may be had by return mail, repeat this story: I have been a terrible sufferer for years from diseases of the skin and blood; have been obliged to shun public places by reason of my disfiguring humors; have had the best physicians; have spent hundreds of dollars, and got no relief until I used the Cuticura Remedies, which have cured me, and left my skin and blood as pure as a child's.

COVERED WITH SALT RHEUM.

Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case of Salt Rheum in this country. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Resolvent, internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, externally.
Newark, O. J. W. ADAMS.

HEAD, FACE AND BODY RAW.

I commenced to use your Cuticura Remedies last July. My head and face and some parts of my body were almost raw. My head was covered with scabs and sores, and my suffering was fearful. I had tried everything I had heard of in the East and West. My case was considered a very bad one. I have now not a particle of Skin Humor about me, and my case is considered wonderful.
DECATUR, MICH. MRS. S. E. WHIPPLE.

ECZEMA FROM HEAD TO FEET.

Charles Eayre Hinkle, Jersey City Heights, N. J. writes: "My son, a lad of twelve years, was completely cured of a terrible case of Eczema by the CUTICURA REMEDIES. From the top of his head to the soles of his feet was one mass of scabs." Every other remedy and physicians had been tried in vain.

NOTHING LIKE CUTICURA.

The half has not been told as to the great curative powers of the cuticura remedies. I have paid hundreds of dollars for medicines to cure diseases of the blood and skin, and never found anything yet to equal the cuticura remedies. CHAS. A. WILLIAMS.
Providence, R. I.

Heroic Action.

ROCHESTER, June 1, 1885. "Ten Years ago I was attacked with the most intense and deathly pains in my back and —Kidneys.

"Extending to the end of my toes and my brain!

"From agony! ! ! !

"It took three men to hold me on my bed at times!

"The Doctors tried in vain to relieve me, but to no purpose.

Morphine and other opiates!

"Had no effect!

After two months I was given up to die! ! !

When my wife heard a neighbor tell what Hop Bitters had done for her, she at once got and gave me some. The first dose eased my brain and seemed to go hunting through my system for the pain.

The second dose eased me so much that I slept two hours, something I had not done for two months. Before I had used five bottles, I was well and at work as hard as any man could, for over three weeks; but I worked too hard for my strength, and taking a hard cold, I was taken with the most acute and painful rheumatism all through my system that ever was known.

"I called the doctors again, and after several week they left me a cripple on crutches, for life, as they said. I met a friend and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would me. I poohed at him, but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again.

In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living and have been so for six years since.

It has also cured my wife, who had been sick for years; and has kept her and my children well and healthy with from two to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters are used. J. J. BERK, Ex-supervisor.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

The New York board of health estimates that 30,000 lives have been destroyed by the explosive qualities of petroleum. If every household would adopt the White Seal oil for family use, none of these unfortunate accidents would occur.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

has none of the defects usually found in common oils. It cannot be exploded, does not char the wick, will not smoke, emits no offensive odor, and prevents the breaking of chimneys.

WHITE SEAL BURNING OIL

is a rich oil for illuminating purposes. It is as light in color as pure spring water. It gives a strong steady light, and burns much longer than common oils.

If the White Seal Burning Oil is not sold in your vicinity, send your order direct to us for a barrel or a case containing two neat five gallon cans.

Andre Soloder is remembered in Fort Wayne. Something like a year ago the darkey paced the streets weilding a huge club and proclaiming himself a cannibal. It required a posse of police to arrest him. The other day he dropped in on the meeting of the colored foreign missionary society at Washington and said: "I'm a native of the Fiji islands, gentlemen, I have eaten human flesh many a time. I was born a Cannibal and was accustomed to eat missionary. In my early days I lived principally on roasted missionary and boiled rice, but I have been a missionary myself these thirty-five years." "What does human flesh taste like?" inquired the bishop. "Pretty much like mule," explained the distinguished stranger "You can hardly tell the difference," said he, between young monkey and squirrel, and boa constrictor is very much like missionary."

ENTERTAINMENTS.

J. B. Studley and his company gave us "A Prisoner for Life" at the Temple last night. The story is interesting if not probable and the scenery magnificent. Mr. Studley, Sarah Neville and Henrietta Irving make the most of their parts, but have not a fair chance to display their great powers. Miss Sheridan is pert as the maid and indeed no objection can be raised to the company. The people carry their own scenery and will mount it to better advantage to-night, when the play will be repeated to great business.

The Bayse Dramatic company gave "Lost and Won" at a matinee performance at the Academy this afternoon, and to-night, by special request play "Monte Cristo." This is an excellent show and the best in their repertoire.

Sid C. France opens at the Academy Monday night for a week. He first gives "Marked for Life."

The Thompson Opera company present "Mikado" at the Temple Monday. This is an extraordinary engagement and for the first time we will listen to the opera.

Genuine Diamonds Found in Tea and Coffee.

The Empire Mills, of New York, have opened a store in this city, in the old Mayer House, on Calhoun street, for the purpose of introducing their new brands of Tea and Coffee, which are put up in paper cans; Coffee can and contents, about 3 pounds; Tea can and contents, about 1¼ pounds. As an extra inducement to purchasers this company will pack in each can of Coffee and Tea a souvenir or present, running in amount from 10c to $50, consisting of Nickel, Silver and solid Gold Watches, genuine Diamonds in solid Gold Settings and other jewelry. This company is an old and well established one. It has already appointed over fifty agents in the various cities, none of whom are now selling souvenirs with their goods, yet each agent has a large and rapidly growing trade, as the superior quality of their Tea and Coffee becomes known. HE GETS IT.

Ferd Ward Sent up for Ten Years.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Ferdinand Ward, smiling and perfectly self-possessed, came into the crowded court room this morning to receive his sentence. Throwing off his overcoat with an easy air, he bowed to and shook hands with his counsel. The court clerk was promptly on hand with his assistant. The judge, however, was late and did not arrive until twenty minutes after the appointed hour. General Tracy, of the Ward counsel moved that judgment be arrested on the ground that the facts stated in the second count of the indictment do not constitute a crime, the court has not jurisdiction on the subject of the indictment and Ferdinand Ward was sentenced by Judge Barrett to the state's prison for ten years.

Ward was taken from the court room to the sheriff's office, and it was decided he should be taken to Sing Sing by the first train, at 2:30.

John McCulloch's Effects Sold.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

NEW YORK, October 30.—Many theatrical and other persons attended the sale to-day, of John McCulloch's wardrobe and stage belongings, at 843 Broadway. Mary Anderson's brother, Joseph, was there, and bought, for his sister, the crown worn by McCready, purchased by Dion Boucicault, in London, and by him presented to McCulloch; also present, was John Collier, who bought the play, "Metamora" and rights for $125; William I. Johnson, of Philadelphia, who bought the exclusive right to the "Gladiator" for $1,500 and the "Broker of Bogota" for $100. Most of the costumes were purchased by theatrical costumers, at low prices. Only two sales were made for more than $100 and those were those already referred to, "gladiator and "metamora." Large bundles of incidental music manuscript plays, prompt books, etc., were bought for one, two and five dollars. A dagger presented by Salvini to McCullough, brought $15 and a Macbeth's dagger presented by Edwin Forrest sold for $21 50 and the sandals, feathers, crosses, wigs, make-up boxes, Roman shirts and other articles used by Mr. McCullagh in the different characters in which he has played, were purchased for little or nothing, as souvenirs. Ladies crowded in the back part of the gallery, who were not recognized as belonging to the theatrical profession, and bid for small articles and paid cash, not wishing to give to give their names. The first dress in "Ingomar," brought $13 and the crown worn by Edmund Kean and presented to McCullough by Dion Boucicault, sold for $15. Joseph Anderson bought the crown. Mr. Johnson paid $21 for the claymore worn in Macbeth and the first dress worn in "Othello," designed by Dion Boucicault and said to have cost $1,000, brought only $96. For the second dress in same play $65 was paid. The third dress brought $60, and the fourth dress $7. A rich Japanese cloak brocaded on crape, sold for $10. Edwin F. Thorne paid $ 5 for the fourth dress in "Richard III. Capt. Connor paid $11 for a Roman toga, shirt and waist and $23 for the shirt and waist worn by Mc Cullough, in "Virginius." The proceeds of the sale will amount to about $ 4,000.

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 31. Recently a most horrible outrage was committed in Talcoco, the details of which have horrified the state. Juan Vincente Palavicini was traveling, with his wife and child, to Hacienda. On the way a bandit, named Pedron, tried to carry off the wife of Palavicini. A fight ensued and Pedron was killed. After the former had left his family at Hacienda, he returned to advise the authorities of what he had done. On his return he was captured by a brother of the dead bandit, assisted by three desperadoes. They took Palavicini off his horse and stripping off his stockings, flayed the soles of his feet and then made him walk with raw flesh nearly a mile. They then cut off his ears and wrists, took out his eyes and lashed him to make him run. Finally they dragged him at the head of their saddles and then tore him in two. The perpetrators of the outrage escaped.

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, Oct. 31.—In the circuit court at Wodsfield, Monroe county, David Comer, who was convicted of murder in the second degree for killing his wife in June last, was sentenced yesterday to the penitentiary for life. From the moment of his incarceration until the last words that dropped from Judge Phillips, which sealed his doom, the miserable man had not spoken a word or made an audible noise with his tongue. The last words of the ninety-nine-year sentence had hardly reached through the court room, however, when the mysterious criminal, who had so long remained apparently dumb, yelled out an avalanche of oaths at the court.

ANSWERED.

The question has probably been asked thousands of times "How can Brown's Iron Bitters cure everything?" Well, it does! It cures any disease for which a reputable physician would prescribe Iron. Physicians prescribe Iron as the best medicinal agent known to the profession, and a majority of any leading chemical iron will substantiate the assertion that there are no other preparations of iron that can in any manner approach our Brown Iron Bitters in curative power. The above conclusively proves that it must be a blood builder, for the most important fact concerning Iron is, that it is the great blood builder. Therefore, when we say a remedy is the best blood purifier, the discovery of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is vouched for by satisfactory testimony, without a parallel in the history of medicine. "BLOOD."

From the Text, "Without Shedding of Blood is No Remission."

The Principal of Self-Sacrifice Found Running Through Human Nature

Blood for Blood and Life for Life Freely Given in all Walks of the World.

Prof. Henry Eyre Brown opened the services in the Brooklyn Tabernacle last Sunday with the organ solo, "First Sonate in D minor, by Ritter. Dr. Talmage expounded the chapter in Leviticus about ancient sacrifices. The hymn sung was:

Salvation, O the joyful sound!
'Tis pleasure to our ears;
A sovereign balm for every wound,
A cordial for our fears.

The subject of the sermon was "Blood," and the text was from Hebrew ix., 22: "Without shedding of blood is no remission." The preacher said:

THE SERMON.

John G. Whittier, the last of the great school of American poets that made the last quarter of a century so brilliant, asked me, in the White mountains one morning after prayer, in which I had given out Cowper's famous hymn about "the fountain filled with blood." "Do you really believe there is a literal application of the blood of Christ to the soul? My negative reply then is my negative reply now. The Bible statement agrees with all physicians and all physiologists and all scientists in saying that the blood is the life, and in the christian religion it means simply that Christ's life was given for our life. Hence, all this talk of men who say the Bible story of blood is disgusting, and that they don't want what they call a "slaughter house religion," only shows their incapacity or unwillingness to look through the figure of speech toward the thing signified. The blood that on the darkest Friday the world ever saw oozed or trickled or poured from the brow and the side and the hands and the feet of the illustrious sufferer, back of Jerusalem, in a few hours coagulated and dried up and forever disappeared; and if man had depended upon the application of the literal blood of Christ, there would not have been a soul saved for the last eighteen centuries.

In order to understand this red word of my text, we only have to exercise as much common sense in religion as we do in everything else. Pang for pang, hunger for hunger, fatigue for fatigue, tear for tear, blood for blood, life for life, we see every day illustrated. The act of substitution is no novelty, although I hear men talk as though the idea of Christ's suffering substituted for our suffering was something abnormal, something distressingly odd, something wildly eccentric, a solitary episode in the world's history; when I could take you out into this city, and before sundown point you to five hundred cases of substitution and voluntary suffering of one in behalf of another.

CHAMPION OF A HOMESTEAD.

At 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon go among the places of loathsome of toil. It will be no difficult thing for you to find men who by their looks show you that they are overworked. They are prematurely old. They are hastening rapidly toward their decease. They have gone through crises in business that shattered their nervous system and pulled on the brain. They have a shortness of breath and a pain in the back of the head, and at night an insomnia that alarms them. Why are they drudging at business early and late? For fun? No; it would be difficult to extract any amusement out of that exhaustion. Because they are avaricious? In many cases no. Because their own personal expenses are lavish? No; a few hundred dollars would meet all their wants. The simple fact is the man is enduring all that fatigue and exasperation, and wear and tear, to keep his home prosperous. There is an invisible line reaching from that bank, from that shop, from that scaffolding, to a quiet scene a few blocks, a few miles away, and there is the secret of that business endurance. He is simply the champion of a homestead for which he wins bread and wardrobe and education and prosperity, and in such battle ten thousand men fall. Of ten business men whom I bury, nine die of overwork for others. Some sudden disease finds them with no power of resistance, and they are gone. Life for life; blood for blood. Substitution.

ANGEL OF THE HOMESTEAD.

At 1 o'clock to-morrow morning, the hour when slumber is most uninterrupted and most profound, walk amid dwelling houses of the city. Here and there you will find a dim light, because it is the household custom to keep another dusel light burning, but most of the houses from base to top are as dark as though uninhabited. A merciful God has sent forth the archangel of sleep, and he put his wings over the city. But yonder is a clear light burning, and outside on the window casement a glass or pitcher containing food for a sick child, the food set in the fresh air. This is the ninth night that mother has set up with that sufferer. She has to the last point obeyed the physician's prescription, not giving a drop too much or too little, or a moment too soon or too late. She is very anxious, for she has buried three children with the same disease, and she prays and weeps, each prayer and sob ending with a kiss of the pale cheek. By dint of kindness she gets the little one through the ordeal. After it is all over the mother is taken down. Brain or nervous fever sets in, and one day she leaves the convalescent child with a mother's blessings and goes up to join the three in the kingdom of heaven. Life for life. Substitution. The fact is that there are an uncounted number of mothers who, after they have navigated a large family of children through all the diseases of infancy and got them fairly started up the flowing slope of boyhood and girlhood, have only strength enough left to die. They fade away. Some call it consumption; some call it nervous prostration; some call it intermittent or malarial disposition; but I call it martyrdom of the domestic circle. Life for life. Blood for blood. Substitution.

Or perhaps she lingers long enough to see a son get on the wrong road, and his former kindness becomes rough reply when she expresses anxiety about him. But she goes right on, looking carefully after his apparel, remembering his every birthday with some momento, and when he is brought home worn out with dissipation nurses him till he gets well and starts him again, and hopes and expects and prays and counsels and suffers, until her strength gives out and she fails. She is going, and attendants bending over her pillow ask her if she has any message to leave, and she makes great effort to say something, but out of three or four minutes of indistinct utterance they can catch but three words, "My poor boy!" The simple fact is she died for him. Life for life. Substitution.

BLOOD SPILLED IN BATTLE.

About twenty-four years ago there went forth from our homes hundreds of thousands of men to do battle for their country. All the poetry of war soon vanished and left them nothing but the terrible prose. They waded knee deep in mud. They slept in snow-banks. They marched till their cut feet marked the earth. They were swindled out of their honest rations, and lived on meat not fit for a dog. They had jaws fractured and eyes extinguished and limbs shot away. Thousands of them cried for water as they lay dying on the field the night after the battle and they got it not. They were homesick and received no message from their loved ones. They died in barns, in bushes, in ditches, the buzzards of the summer heat the only attendants on their obsequies. No one but the infinite God, who knows everything, knows the ten-thousandth part of the length and breath and height of anguish of northern and southern battlefields. Why did those fathers leave their children and go to the front, and why did these young men, postponing the marriage day, start out into probabilities of never coming back? For the country they died. Life for life. Blood for blood. Substitution.

SELF-SACRIFICE.

But we need not go so far. What is that monument in Greenwood? It is to the doctors who fell in the southern epidemics. Why go? Were there not enough sick to be attended in these northern latitudes? Oh, yes, but the doctor puts a few medical books in his valise, and some vials of medicine, and leaves his patients here in the hands of other physicians, and takes the rail train. Before he gets to the infected regions he passes crowded rail trains, regular and extra, taking the flying and affrighted populations. He arrives in a city over which a great horror is brooding. He goes from couch to couch, feeling of pulse and studying symptoms and prescribing, day after day, night after night, until a fellow physician says: "Doctor, you had better go home and rest; you look miserable." But he can not rest while so many are suffering. On and on until some morning finds him in a delirium, in which he talks of home, and then rises and says he must go and look after those patients. He is told to lie down, but he fights his attendants until he falls back, and is weaker and weaker, and dies for people with whom he had no kinship and far away from his family, and is hastily put away in a stranger's tomb, and only the fifth part of a newspaper line tells us of his sacrifice, his name just mentioned among five. Yet he has touched the farthest height of sublimity in that three weeks of humanitarian service. He goes straight as an arrow to the bosom of Him who said: "I was sick and ye visited me." Life for life. Blood for blood. Substitution.

THE PRINCIPLE EXTENDED.

In the legal profession. I see the same principle of self-sacrifice. In 1846, William Freeman, a pauperized and idiotic negro, was at Auburn, New York, on trial for murder. He had slain the the entire Van Nest family. The foaming wrath of the community could be kept off him only by armed constables. Who would volunteer to be his counsel? No attorney wanted to sacrifice his popularity by such an ungrateful task. All were silent save one, a young lawyer with feeble voice that could hardly be heard outside the bar, pale and thin and awkward. It was William H. Seward who saw that the prisoner was idiotic and irresponsible and ought to be put in an asylum rather than put to death, the terror connected therewith. The heroic counsel uttering these beautiful words: "I speak now in the hearing of a people who have prejudged the prisoner and condemned me for pleading in his behalf. He is a convict, a pauper, a negro, without intellect, sense or emotion. My child with an affectionate smile disarms my care-worn face of its frown whenever I cross my threshold. The beggar in the street obliges me to give, because he says, "God bless you!" as I pass. My dog caresses me with fondness if I but smile on him. My horse recognizes me when I fill his manger. What reward, what gratitude, what sympathy and affection can I expect here? There the prisoner can I expect here! There the prisoner sits. Look at him. Look at the assemblage around you. Listen to their ill-suppressed censures and their excited fears and tell me where among my neighbors or my fellow men, where, even in his heart, I can expect to find a sentiment, a thought, not to say of reward or of acknowledgement or even of recognition. * * * Gentlemen, you may think of this evidence what you please, bring in what verdict you can, but I asseverate before heaven and you that, to the best of my knowledge and belief, the prisoner at the bar does not at this moment know why it is that my shadow falls on you instead of his own." The gallows got its victim, but the post-mortem examination of the poor creature showed to all the surgeons and to all the world that the public were wrong, and Wm. H. Seward was right; and that hard, stony step of oblivion in the Auburn court room was the first step of the stairs of fame up which he went to the top, or to within one step of the top, that last denied him through the treachery of American politics. Nothing sublimer was ever seen in an American court room than Wm. H. Seward, without reward, standing between the fury of the populace and the loathsome imbecile. Substitution.

EXAMPLES IN ART.

In the realms of the fine arts there was as remarkable an instance. A brilliant but hypercriticised painter, Joseph William Turner, was met by a volley of abuse from all the art galleries of Europe. His paintings which have since won the applause of all civilized nations, "The Fifth Plague of Egypt," "Fishermen on a Lee Shore in Squally Weather," "Calais Pier," "The Sun Rising Through Mist," and "Dido Building Carthage," were then targets for critics to shoot at. In defense of this outrageously abused man, a young author of twenty-four years, just one year out of college, came forth with his pen and wrote the ablest and most famous essay on art that the world ever saw or ever will see—John Ruskin's Modern Painters. For seventeen years this author fought the battles of the maltreated artist, and after in poverty and brokenheartedness the painter had died, and the public tried to undo their cruelties towards him by giving him a big funeral and burial at St. Paul's cathedral. His old-time friend took out of a tin box nineteen thousand pieces of paper containing drawings by the old painter, and through many weary and uncompensated months assorted and arranged them for public observation. People say John Ruskin in his old days is cross, misanthropic and morbid. Whatever he may do that he ought not to do, and whatever he may say that he ought not to say between now and his death, he will leave this world insolvent as far as it has any capacity to pay this author's pen for its chivalric and Christian defense of a poor painter's pencil. John Ruskin for William Turner. Blood for blood. Substitution.

AN EXALTING PRINCIPLE.

What an exalting principle this which leads one to suffer for another! Nothing so kindles enthusiasm or awakens eloquence, or chimes poetic cantos, or moves nations. That principle is the dominant one in our religion—Christ the martyr, Christ the celestial hero, Christ the defender, Christ the substitute. No new principle, for it was as old as human nature; but on a grander, wider, higher, deeper and more world-resounding scale. The shepherd boy, as champion for Israel, with a sling toppled the giant Philistine braggadocio in the dust, but here is another David, who, for all the armies of churches militant and triumphant, hurls the Goliath of hell into defeat, the crash of his brazen armor like an explosion at Hell Gate. Abraham had, at God's command, agreed to sacrifice his son Isaac, and the same God, just in time, had provided a ram of the thicket as a substitute; but here is another Isaac bound to the altar, and no hand arrests the sharp edges of laceration and death, and the universe shivers, and quakes, and recoils, and groans at the horror. All good men have for centuries been trying to tell who this substitute was like, and every comparison inspired and inspired, evangelistic, prophetic, apostolic and human, falls short, for Christ was the great unlike. Adam a type of Christ, because he came directly from God. Noah a type of Christ, because he delivered his own family from deluge; Melchisedeck a type of Christ, because he had no predecessor or successor; Joseph a type of Christ, he was put to death by his brother; Moses, a type of Christ, because he was a deliverer from bondage; Joshua, a type of Christ, because he was a conqueror; Samson a type of Christ, because of his struggle to slay the lions and carry off the iron gate of impossibility; Solomon a type of Christ, in the fullness of his dominion; Jonah a type of Christ, because of the stormy sea in which he threw himself for the rescue of others; but put together Adam and Noah and Melchisedeck and Joseph and Moses and Joshua and Samson and Solomon and Jonah and they would not make a fragment of a Christ, a quarter of a Christ, the half of a Christ, the millionth part of a Christ. He forsook a throne and sat down on his own footstool. He came from the top of glory to the bottom of humiliation, and changed a circumference seraphic to a circumference diabolic. Once waited on by angels now hissed at by brigands. From afar and high up, he came down; a past meteors, swifter than they; by starry thrones, himself more lustrous; past larger worlds and smaller worlds, down stairs of firmaments and from cloud to cloud and through the tree tops and into the camel's stall. To thrust his shoulder under our burdens and take the lance of pain through his vitals, he wrapped himself in all the agonies which we deserve for our misdoings, and stood on the spiking decks of a wrecking ship amid the drenching surf of the sea and passed midnights on the mountains amid wild beasts of prey and stood at the point where all earthly and infernal hostilities charged on him at once, with their keen sabers, our substitute.

CHRIST'S SACRIFICE IN COMPARISON.

When did attorney ever endure so much for a proper client, or physician for the patient in the lazaretto, or mother for the child in membranous croup, as Christ for us, and Christ for you, and Christ for me? Shall any man or woman or child in this audience who has ever suffered for another, find it hard to understand this Christly suffering for us? Shall those whose sympathies have been wrung in behalf of the unfortunate have no appreciation of that one of eternity as most conspicuous, when Christ gathered up all the sins of those to be redeemed under his one arm and all their sorrows under the other arm, and said: "I will atone for these under my right arm and will heal all those under my left arm. Strike me with thy glittering shafts. O, eternal justice. Roll over me with all thy surges, ye oceans of sorrow!" And the thunderbolts struck him from above, and the seas of trouble rolled up from beneath, hurricane after hurricane and cyclone after cyclone, and then and there, in presence of heaven and earth and hell, yea, all worlds witnessing, the price, the bitter price, the transcendent price, the awful price, the glorious price, the infinite price, the eternal price, was paid that sets us free. That is what Paul means, that is what I mean, that is what all those who have ever had their heart changed mean by "blood." I glory in this religion of blood. I am thrilled as I see the suggestive color in sacramental cup, whether it be of burnished silver set on cloth immaculately white, or rough-hewn from wood set on table in log-hut meeting house of the wilderness. Now I am thrilled as I see the altars of ancient sacrifice crimson with the blood of the slain lamb, Leviticus is to me not so much the Old Testament as the New. Now I see why the destroying angel passing over Egypt in the night spared all those houses that had blood sprinkled on their door posts. Now I know what Isaiah means when he speaks of "one in red apparel coming with dyed garments from Bozrah;" and whom John means when he describes a heavenly chieftain whose "vesture was dipped in blood," and what Peter, the Apostle, means when he speaks of the "precious blood," and what John means when he refers to the blood that cleanseth from all sin, and what the old worn out, decrepit missionary, Paul, means when, in my text, he cries, "Without shedding of blood there is no remission." By that blood you and I will be saved, or never saved at all. In all the ages of the world God has not once pardoned a single sin except through the Saviour's expiation, and He never will. Glory be to God that the hill back of Jerusalem was the battlefield on which Christ achieved our liberty!

A DAY ON A BATTLEFIELD.

The most exciting and overpowering day of last summer was the day I spent on the battle-field of Waterloo. Starting out with the morning train from Brussels, Belgium, we arrived in about an hour on that famous spot. A son of one who was in the battle, and who had heard from his father a thousand times the whole scene recited, accompanied me over the field. There stood the old Hougomont Chateau, the walls dented and scratched and broken and shattered of grape-shot and cannon-ball. There is the well in which three hundred dead and dying were pitched. There is the chapel with the head of the infant Christ shot off. There are gates at which for many hours the English and French armies wrestled. Yonder were the 160 guns of the English and the 250 guns of the French. Yonder the Hanoverian Hussars fled for the woods. Yonder was the ravine of Ohaine, where the French cavalry, not knowing there was a hollow in the ground, rolled over and down, troop after troop two thousand horses and fifteen hundred men tumbling into one awful mass of suffering, hoof of kicking horses against brow and breast of captains and colonels and private soldiers, the human and the beastly groan kept up until the day after, all was shoveled under, because of the malodor arising in that hot month of June. "There," said our guide, "the highland regiments lay down on their faces waiting for the moment to spring upon the foe. In that orchard 2,500 men were cut to pieces. Here stood Wellington with white lips, and by that knoll rode Marshal Nay on his sixth horse, five having been shot under him. Here the ranks of the French broke and Marshal Ney with his body slashed of a sword and his hat off and his face covered with powder and blood, tried to rally his trops as he cried; "Come and see how a marshal of France dies on the battlefield." From yonder direction Grouchey was expected for the French reinforcement, but he came not. Around those woods Blucher was looked for to reinforce the English, and just in time he came up. Yonder is the field where Napoleon stood, his arm through the reins of the horses bridle, dazed and unstrung, trying to go back. Scene of a battlefield that went on from twenty-five minutes to 12 o'clock, on the 18th day of June, until 4 o'clock, when the English seemed defeated, and their commander cried out: "Boys, can you think of giving way? Remember old England!" and the tides turned, and at 8 o'clock in the evening the man of destiny, who was called by his troops Old Two Hundred Thousand, turned away with broken heart, and the fate of centuries decided. No wonder a great mound has been reared there hundreds of feet high, a mound at the expense of millions of dollars and many years in rising, and on the top is the great Belgian lion of bronze, and a grand old lion it is.

But our great Waterloo was in Palestine. There came a day when all hell came up, led by Apollyon, and the captain of our salvation confronted them alone, the rider on the white horse of the Apocalypse going out against the black horse cavalry of death. From 12 o'clock at noon to 3 o'clock in the afternoon the greatest battle of the universe went on. Eternal destinies were being decided. All the arrows of hell pierced our Chieftain, and the battle axe struck him until brow and cheek and shoulder and hand and foot were incarnadined with oozing life, but he fought on until he gave a final stroke with sword from Jehovah's buckler, and the commander-in-chief of hell and all his forces fell back in everlasting ruin, and the victory is ours, and on the mound that celebrates the triumph, we plant this day two figures, not in bronze or iron of sculptured marble, but two figures of living light, the lion of Judah's tribe and the lamb that was slain.

"100 doses one dollar" is true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it is an unanswerable argument as to strength and economy.

"LITTLE MACK."

His Fort Wayne Comrades Do Him Honor.

In response to the call for a meeting of old veterans who had served in the army of the Potomac under the late General George McClellan, about twenty gentlemen assembled in Colonel Robertson's law office last evening. Colonel Robertson was unanimously chosen chairman and Mr. George D. Adams elected secretary. On motion the chair appointed comrades A. P. Buchman, Allan H. Dougall, F. F. Boltz, J. W. Young, as a committee, which acting with himself, was empowered to draft a series of resolutions expressing the grief of all present at the death of the gallant "Little Mac."

Colonel Robertson, then, at the request of the meeting pronounced a brief eulogy on the life and public services of General McClellan. This address although entirely impromptu was a grand effort and was listened to with marked attention. Colonel Young followed in a brief outline of General McClellan's brilliant career previous to his taking command of all the armies and the army of the Potomac in particular. The speaker paid a high tribute to the deceased general's great patriotism and intense devotion to duty.

Messrs. A. P. Buchman and F. F. Boltz also made short addresses. They referred mainly to the manly qualities of McClellan and his acknowledge ability as a tactician and a military engineer.

Among those present were the following gentlemen, their regiments and companies are given where known: Samuel M. Hench, company F., 126th Pennsylvania; R. S. Robertson, 93rd New York; George Humphrey, 12th Indiana; F. F. Boltz, company G, 12th Indiana; Scott Swann, company F. 12th Indiana; J. Willis Clark, 59th New York; J. W. Young, 76th New York; George D. Adams, 74th New York; H. O. Crosby, company A, 5th United States cavalry; J. H. Sloan, company I. 11th Pennsylvania reserves; A. P. Buchman, 107th Ohio; Frank Gibson, 69th Pennsylvania; Allen Dougall, army of Georgia; C. B. Oakley, army of the Cumberland; John Seaton, army of Ohio; F. W. Keil, army of Ohio.

The committee on resolutions submitted the following preamble and resolutions which were unanimously adopted.

Whereas, with the death of Major General George B. McClellan, the last surviving, but first of the great commanders of, and the one who organized the grand army of the Potomac has passed away. The one who could best tell us the story of its formation, its progress, its rigid adherence to duty and its steady onward march to the culmination of a mighty army, perfect in all its parts. Therefore be it.

Resolved, that as soldiers, while we submit to the afflictive visitation of the Wise Dispenser of all events, we regard the death of General McClellan as a public calamity.

Resolved, That in his conspicuous qualities as a soldier, so greatly displayed on many historic fields, and his gentlemanly and chivalric bearing, connected as they were with true patriotism, we have an eminent example of those virtues and graces of mind which together form the crowning glory of human life.

Resolved, That to his stricken family we offer our sincere condolence in their great bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family and published by the press of this city.

Helpers to a Worthy Cause.

The ladies' auxiliary to the Railroad Young Men's Christian association was organized in the parlors of the railroad reading rooms Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. E. S. An Excellent Medicine.

"I certify that my wife and myself were in bad health for some fifteen years. I chanced to be looking over one of Simmons Liver Regulator Almanacs and saw A. H. Judge E. V. Long in His Youth.

The appointment of Judge Long gives universal satisfaction, says Jap Turpin in the Indianapolis Sentinel. The habits and tastes of a student have blessed him with far more than what might be termed a "liberal education." He is remarkably apt and successful in his profession of jurisprudence and one of the most agreeable persons in the world. Judge Ward, of the Lafayette district and Judge Long

—"Were boys together,
Knowing nothing of the flight of time,
Fearing naught but work and rainy weather.
As chums they dived into sciences; having sealed Parnacus, having previously shared together mumps, measles and whooping cough and long years have not in the least abated their friendship. In addition to this, Judge Lowry of the Fort Wayne district, and Judge Long were once, though living in separate towns, law partners and have always been devoted friends. It was Judge Lowry who wrote for Judge Long to come to Washington and felt sure that President Cleveland would approve his application for the place made vacant by the suspension of Judge Long.

There Shall be no Alps.

When Napoleon talked of invading Italy one of his officers said: "But, sire, remember the Alps." To an ordinary man these would seemed simply insurmountable, but Napoleon responded eagerly: "There shall be no Alps." So the famous Simplon was passed. Disease, like a mountain, stands in the way of fame, fortune and honor to many who by Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" might be healed and so the mountain would disappear. It is specific for all blood, chronic lung and liver diseases, such as consumption (which is scrofula of the lungs), pimples, blotches, eruptions, tumors, swellings, fever-sores and kindred complaints.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. NISSA, October, 30.—It is officially announced to day that the Bulgarian forces have blockaded the frontier and that the officers have issued orders to the men, to shoot any man they find crossing from Servia into Bulgaria. The Servian troops have been ordered to reply in force, in such an event, without awaiting special orders from the commanding general, or in other words they have received carte blanche in the premises. It is stated that bands of Bulgarians have commenced harrassing the Servian frontier towns.

SKIN, SCALP, BLOOD

Cleansed, Purified and Beautified by the Cuticura Remedies.

Hundreds of letters in our possession, copies of which may be had by return mail, repeat this story: I have been a terrible sufferer for years from diseases of the skin and blood; have been obliged to shun public places by reason of my disfiguring humors; have had the best physicians; have spent hundreds of dollars, and got no relief until I used the Cuticura Remedies, which have cured me, and left my skin and blood as pure as a child's.

COVERED WITH SALT RHEUM.

Cuticura Remedies are the greatest medicines on earth. Had the worst case of Salt Rheum in this country. My mother had it twenty years, and in fact died from it. I believe Cuticura would have saved her life. My arms, breast and head were covered for three years, which nothing relieved or cured until I used the Cuticura Remedies, internally, and Cuticura and Cuticura Soap, externally.

Newark, O. J. W. ADAMS.

HEAD, FACE AND BODY RAW.

I commenced to use your Cuticura Remedies last July. My head and face and some parts of my body were almost raw. My head was covered with scabs and sores, and my suffering was fearful. I had tried everything I had heard of in the East and West. My case was considered a very bad one. I have now not a particle of Skin Humor about me, and my case is considered wonderful.

FIFTEEN YEARS FROM HEAD TO FEET.

Charles Eayre Hinkle, Jersey City Heights, N. J., writes: "My son, a lad of twelve years, was completely cured of a terrible case of Eczema by the CUTICURA REMEDIES. From the top of his head to the soles of his feet was one mass of sores. Every other remedy and physicians had been tried in vain.

NOTHING LIKE CUTICURA.

The half has not been told as to the great curative powers of the cuticura remedies. I have paid hundreds of dollars for medicines to cure disease of the blood and skin, and never found anything yet to equal the cuticura remedies. CHAS. A. WILLIAMS.

Narrow Escape.

ROCHESTER, June 1, 1882. "Ten Years ago I was attacked with the most Intense and deathly pains in my back and —Kidneys.

"Extending to the end of my toes and my brain!

"Which made me delirous!

"From agony! ! ! !

"It took three men to hold me on my bed at times!

"The Doctors tried in vain to relieve me, but to no purpose.

Morphine and other opiates!

"Had no effect!

After two months I was given up to die! ! !

When my wife heard a neighbor tell what Hop Bitters had done for her, she at once got and gave me some. The first dose eased my brain and seemed to go hunting through my system for the pain.

The second dose eased me so much that I slept two hours, something I had not done for two months. Before I had used five bottles, I was well and at work as hard as any man could, for over three years; but I worked too hard for my strength, and taking a hard cold, I was taken with the most acute and painful rheumatism all through my system that ever was known.

I called the doctors again, and after several weeks they left me a cripple on crutches, for life, as they said. I met a friend and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would me. I scoffed at him, but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again.

In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living and have been so for six years since.

It has also cured my wife, who had been sick for years; and has kept her and my children well and healthy with from two to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters are used. J. J. BERK, Ex-supervisor.

The New York board of health estimates that 3,000 lives have been destroyed by the explosive qualities of petroleum. If every household would adopt the White Seal oil for family use, none of these unfortunate accidents would occur.

has none of the defects usually found in common oils. It cannot be exploded, does not char the wick, will not smoke, emits no offensive odor, and prevents the breaking of chimneys.

I was born a Cannibal and was accustomed to eat missionary. In my early days I lived principally on roasted missionary and boiled rice, but I have been a missionary myself these thirty-five years." "What does human flesh taste like?" inquired the bishop. "Pretty much like nuke," explained the distinguished stranger "You can hardly tell the difference," said he, between young monkey and squirrel, and boa constrictor is very much like missionary."

The people carry their own scenery and will mount it to better advantage to-night, when the play will be repeated to great business.
